Why?

There is desperate need for good quality, free legal advice. Sadly, many vulnerable people throughout London and the South East cannot afford to pay for advice or enforce their rights. The funds you raise will help them access the justice they so desperately need.

£££

2018 saw 13,000 people walking for justice, raising £830,000. The money raised from the London Legal Walk goes directly to supporting free legal advice in London and the South East. In 2018, The London Legal Support Trust gave out £900,000 in grants and support for the free legal advice sector.

Who are we?

We are the London Legal Support Trust. We work to support access to justice for those who need it most throughout London and the South East. We do this by holding large fundraising events, most notably the London Legal Walk.

The agencies we support include Law Centres and other legal advice agencies. We help by providing them with grant funding, offering our knowledge and experience of the sector and supporting them to become more sustainable through our organisational development programme, namely the Centres of Excellence Scheme.

We are part of a network of seven Legal Support Trusts across England and in Wales working with the Access to Justice Foundation to support pro bono and advice agencies, ensuring funds can be distributed where needed most throughout England and Wales.
